Solomon family stories according to Marsha

Joe's family - his parents, Molly and Orley, were married in Russia when they were 13 or 14. They couldn't conceive after 7 years, and the law was that they had to divorce if they had no children by then, so they came to US (Idaho? Denver?) and had 7 kids - Sara, Ida, Blanche, Hyman, Morris, Freda, and Joe. Sara, as oldest, took care of the children. Joe took care of the two boys (?).

Orley was a rabbi, or learned man, but he also owned a bar, and worked nights; he had to walk in the cold and snow, and got pneumonia. He died in his 40's. According to Freda, Molly "rocked herself to death," also in her 40's.

Joe, Hyman and Morris came out to Seattle work; Hy went to law school, and Joe and Morris opened a (clothing?) business; eventually they were able to bring all their sisters out to Seattle.

Brashen family

Sophie had Abe Mushy, Hattie, and Fannie with her 2nd husband, Mr. Bronsky. (Her first husband died.) Abe married Blanche Solomon, and Hattie married Joe Solomon - "double cousins."

Blanche and Abe had Mickey (oldest) and Marlene. Blanche and Abe were conflicted; Blanche adored Mickey, but Abe and Mickey were conflicted. Abe loved Marlene, but Blanche was mean and cruel to her. Marsha said sometimes Blanche would be so horrible to Marlene, Marsha was afraid to be in their house.

Solomon family

Joe and Hattie had Orley (oldest), Paul and Marsha.

Marsha born with broken rib - got a blood transfusion from her dad; said she always knew she was a "true Solomon," and not a Brashen.
